

TechNova Inc., a technology firm, was accused by Innovatech Ltd. of infringing on its patented software algorithm. Innovatech claimed that TechNova's new software product used the patented technology without authorization. The dispute centered on whether TechNova's product incorporated the patented algorithm or if it was independently developed. The court examined the patent claims, the development process of TechNova's software, and the potential impact on Innovatech's market position.